

Automatic mosquito control

Skeet-R-Gone is a concentrate injection device that allows one to apply ecologically friendly insecticides through existing underground watering systems. The 160-pounds-per-square-inch pump in Skeet-R-Gone is housed in a separate control box, which includes a timer, a backflow preventer and a place for the chemical concentrate. (Skeet-R-Gone suggests several biologically and ecologically friendly concentrates on its Web site at www.skeetrgone.com.)

Use this fence as a planter

This vinyl "Living Fence" can fit into many landscaping projects, with its sporty, clean-white appearance and built-in planter box for potted or bedded annuals. In the winter, the fence section can be decorated with Christmas lights, ivy or evergreen bows for a festive touch. The Living Fence comes with attachments to link to an underground watering system, so the growing seasonal plants get a drink at the same time as your lawn. For more information on this and other designs, call John Windhusen at 308-962-6647.

U-latch gate lock

The U-Latch solves several problems at once: It offers easy installation; it handles large livestock; and it doesn't require welding. Made in Eugene, Ore., the U-Latch is designed to fit 1½- to 2-inch livestock gates and panels. The latch is bolted to the gate tubing either vertically or horizontally. It accommodates gaps, sags and uneven ground conditions. The rounded edges are safe around horses and other livestock, and it can be operated with one hand. Suggested retail is $9.95. For information, call 541-487-4966 or go online to www.u-latch.com.
